

RLA Presents

Visit to the Information Commons and Women and Leadership Archives of Loyola University

Friday October 3, 2008 9:30 am -
12:00pm
Free

The Reference Librarians Association is sponsoring a tour of Loyola University's Information Commons, a technology-rich learning environment supporting both individual and collaborative research in a striking location on Lake Michigan. The IC is also recognized as a model for sustainable architecture.

Leslie Haas, director of the IC, will lead the tour. For an overview of the IC, access

<http://libraries.luc.edu/about/ic/ic-overview.htm>

We will also tour the Women and Leadership Archives. Beth Myers, director of the Archives, will talk about this collection, which focuses on materials relating to women's contributions to society and is housed in Piper Hall, a former mansion recycled as a premier archival space.

For further information about this collection, please visit,
